Eve and Annie Boutique brings fashionable addition to downtown

By JACKIE KOCH
jackie@tecumsehherald.com

A new women's clothing and accessory store arrived in downtown Tecumseh at the end of May, when The Eve and Annie Boutique opened its doors in the space previously occupied by Radio Shack at 102 W. Chicago Blvd., Suite 102.

The shop's owner, Dundee resident Jenny Ryle, had been selling through pop-up events and online sales for the past year, and set her sights on opening a brick-and-mortar store after having success with her business. "I've always wanted my own store, so I was very excited to open the store in Tecumseh," she said.

Ryle said she has been involved in the fashion industry for about 15 years and when she was ready to finally realize her dream to open a store, she felt inspired to honor the influence of two women in her life. The Eve and Annie in the store's name are the names of her paternal and maternal grandmothers. "They were these two stylish women. They loved to entertain and we always went down to the beach, we always had amazing holidays," she said. "So basically the store is a bit of an ode to them."

She acquires her store's clothing from various design houses from around the Tecumseh's annual Sidewalk Sales and Summer Beach Party weekend July 19-20 will feature a whole lot of sand with a theme of "Sand in Tecumseh," which will include a sand sculpting event by sculptors who also create the city's ice sculptures during the winter Ice Sculpture Festival.

On Thursday, July 18, sculptors from Ice Creations in Napoleon, Ohio will begin packing boxes with sand downtown on the north and south side of Chicago Boulevard for the two sand sculpture creations, and at 4 p.m. the Thursday Farmers Market will open for business at the Market on Evans and will stay open until 7 p.m.

Also kicking off the weekend's festivities from 6-8 p.m. Thursday will be the Classic Car & Bike Show in the Old National Bank parking lot, and Music in the Park at Adams Park, 309 E. Chicago Blvd., featuring Drummunity. Attendees may bring chairs and are welcome to participate with Drummunity in a community drumming circle. This interactive event is family-friendly and no experience is necessary. A drum circle is a group of people playing hand-drums and percussion in a circle. Lori Fithian, who travels the country leading community drum circles, will lead the event.

Also during Music in the Park, the City of Tecumseh's Parks and Recreation Department will offer several special children's activities and games, before the concert and during intermission, and

Wagoner chooses college over Texas Rangers pick

By KERRY HAMILTON SMITH

Cameron Wagoner

With a 96-mile-an-hour fastball and a wicked curveball, Cameron Wagoner drew the attention of 28 of 30 Major League Baseball (MLB) scouts during his senior year on the mound for Tecumseh High School. On the day of his final high school game, he got the call he'd been eagerly anticipating — he had been drafted in the 22nd round by the Texas Rangers. On Monday, still waiting on a final offer, he decided instead to take a full-ride scholarship to hurl for the Eastern Michigan University Eagles.

"I literally just decided yesterday," Wagoner said in a phone interview on Tuesday. Wrestling with several key factors, including life in the minor leagues, travel, getting a degree in four years and the amount of money he'd be offered were among the things that played a part in his decision. And then there's the pitching part. "I'm not physically ready yet and I don't think I'm mentally ready," he said.

Inner Space

By Jackie Koch

A recent interview with seven young adults who signed up for adventure, hard work, and travel as members of an AmeriCorps crew reminded me of the hopefulness and enthusiasm of my youth, when exploring possibilities with gusto was the norm and obstacles seemed like interesting challenges rather than roadblocks.

I once worked for the parks and recreation department of Valdese, North Carolina, a sleepy little town in the mountainous region of the Carolinas. During that hot southern summer, I weeded, planted, and applied mulch. I remember the insects, the red soil, and the exhaustion and exhilaration of laboring outdoors surrounded by nature. It was the first time I lived outside of Michigan and the county where I grew up, and the challenges of that experience remain with me as fond memories of learning my capabilities in an unfamiliar new world. Later moves to Sidney, Ohio, then to Morganton, North Carolina and later to Fairborn, Ohio near Dayton gave me additional experience in navigating new communities and finding ways to appreciate the differences and similarities of each place.

Other adventures in my mid-20s included a month of living out of the back of a pickup truck with one other person on a trip from Sidney, Ohio to Chico, California and back, but I stopped almost all travel once I became a parent, then a single parent with limited funds. I wished I could take my sons on vacations, but that cost money I didn't have to spend, and the years slipped by so quickly.

For decades I avoided adventures that required flying or traveling alone, but in my frustration at missing out on things I really wanted to do, this year I set forth to change things. After all, life IS too short to be afraid to enjoy it.

In February I went online and purchased tickets to fly to Boston and back over a long weekend at the beginning of May. Having both sons reside there forced me to overcome my assumed fear of flying. The one and only time I had flown was when I was 23 and was with my mother, so that experience was long in my past.

Although I was worried I would panic from claustrophobia once I boarded, and was concerned about navigating the airports alone, as the beginning of May got closer I became more and more excited about my trip. Labeling any tension in my body related to the journey as "excitement" rather than "nervousness" helped tremendously.

A friend dropped me off at Detroit Metropolitan Airport, where I asked questions of random strangers and found many people who were glad to help. Because I was so excited to see my sons and fly solo for the first time, my experience was incredibly positive and I enjoyed my journey there and back as well as my time spent in the Boston area.

That flight definitely changed things. Back at home, I felt bitten by the travel bug. I had a week of vacation left to use before July 1 and it was like money burning a hole in my pocket. Where did I want to go on short notice, and whom would I visit? No destination called to me like Boston, so with late purchase of airline tickets too costly, I planned my first ever solo road trip.

I arranged stays through Airbnb halfway to and from Boston so I wouldn't have to do the trip in one day. I estimated my first day of driving at nine hours with breaks, but I turned on the wrong exit near Cleveland, ended up in western Pennsylvania, and saw some beautiful mountainous countryside while making my way back to I-90. Twelve hours later I welcomed the hot shower and bed in Syracuse, New York. The next day I arrived in the big city and drove through Boston on a busy Saturday, finally reaching my sons' home.

After five days of quality time with my boys and my oldest son's girlfriend, as well as exploring on my own, I left for home, arriving in Michigan feeling empowered by more than 1,700 miles of believing in myself. Now the world feels like a big place just waiting for me to visit.

They say you can't teach an old dog new tricks — but I beg to differ.

The final dispatch: Tecumseh Police Department joins Lenawee County Central Dispatch as of June 30

■ After 20 years, Monica Andrews says goodbye to her dispatch duties at the Tecumseh Police Department

By MARY KAY MCPARTLIN
marykay@tecumsehherald.com

Monica Andrews (MA):
Tecumseh Police to Central Dispatch

Lenawee County Central Dispatch (LCCD): This is Central, go ahead.

MA: This is Tecumseh Police Department signing off for the final time as we close our dispatch center and turn the radios over to Central Dispatch. Thank you. Tecumseh Police is out at 12:02 hours.

LCCD: Clear, Tecumseh, and thank you for your service.

MA: And thank you as well. Have a safe night.

As June 29 slid into June 30, Tecumseh Police Department (TPD) officially transferred dispatch duties over to Lenawee County Central Dispatch (LCCD). TPD dispatcher Monica Andrews closed out her final shift for the city, a little later than she usually worked dispatch.

"I worked the afternoon shift so I could end out," she said.

TPD has taken care of dispatch for at least 60 years, according to Andrews. She has worked for the department as a dispatcher since December 18, 2000, and worked as a dispatcher for Washtenaw County the previous 10 years.

Monica Andrews on her final day of dispatching duties

TPD was the last of the county police departments to have its own dispatch. "Everybody else went through Central," Andrews said. "We were the last hurrah."

A combination of technological advancements for the department and increased cost made the switch to LCCD a necessity for TPD. New 800-megahertz radios, additional cost for a dedicated phone line direct to the county, and the need to replace outdated computer software when it expires all combined to make it too expensive for Tecumseh.

Staffing dispatch on weekends and holidays had gradually become more of a challenge for the city. As a result, in December 2017, dispatch started closing on the holidays.

Andrews is now the police services clerk and works from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Thursday. Although she no longer dispatches police for the city, Andrews has plenty to keep her busy.

She administers breathalyzer tests, provides Freedom of Information Act data, prints out accident reports, takes care of audits and records for the department, checks on criminal history, and acts as a notary. These are tasks Andrews completed in addition to working as the TPD dispatcher.

"The police department didn't go away," said Andrews. "We are still offering the same services."

During the day shift, Tecumseh residents and TPD officers were used to hearing Andrews' voice on the other end of the line. She has been a listening ear for citizens who needed guidance rather than a police officer.

As support for the patrolling officers, Andrews would give them information or extra manpower. It will take time for country, much of it from Los Angeles. For accessories she focuses on handmade and handcrafted items. "For example, I've got earrings that I get from Texas that are three-and-a-half to four inches long," she said. "I just want to bring something different to the market at the moment."

According to theeve-andannieboutique.com, the boutique is a blend of Australian and Michigan culture, celebrating the love of lake life, beaches and entertaining. Ryle, who grew up in Australia, has over 10 years in fashion forecasting, merchandising and marketing for top fashion buying offices.

Her family, including her husband Michael and two young children, are very supportive of her new venture. "The timing was right for me to open a storefront, and they've been amazing and very supportive of that. They're very happy that their mum's got her own store. My son said he was quite proud of me, so that was nice," said Ryle.

She said the community has welcomed her. "It's been wonderful. Everyone's been really amazing. It's been really nice getting to know everyone, whether they're from Tecumseh or they're coming in for a day trip. They've responded really well and we're really excited by it," Ryle said. She has received much support from the Tecumseh business community, as well.

And as for having her store open? "I'm loving it.

I can't wait to go into the store every day. I love getting all the new products in — I get new products in weekly so there's something fresh there for people to come and look at. I've always loved talking to people and basically helping them find the right style and making them feel really good about themselves as well, whether it be just a new top they feel great in or a dress for an event or graduation or something like that," Ryle said. "I love to make people happy."

The Eve and Annie Boutique is open Tuesday through Friday, 11 a.m. until 5 p.m., and Saturday 10 a.m.-4 p.m. For more information, visit the store's Facebook page or call 517.438.4290.

BD teacher, students, create 40-foot mural for Lenawee fairgrounds

jackie@tecumsehherald.com

Almost four dozen artists of all ages contributed to a 40-foot-long mural featuring images of the Lenawee County Fair after fair board officials reached out to members of the Adrian Center for the Arts (ACA) in February and were connected to Britton Deerfield art teacher Taina Bundshuh. The resulting masterpiece will grace the Dean Street side of the maintenance building on the fairgrounds in Adrian once it is installed ahead of the fair, which will take place July 21-27.

Bundshuh said Karen and Wayne Roback from the Lenawee County Fair Board contacted Jill Shaffer from the ACA to request a mural, and Shaffer, knowing that Bundshuh and her students were up to the challenge, passed along the request.

“First I asked for my students to send me photos they had of the fair,” Bundshuh said. “Many had photos of themselves, family members or friends at the fair, often with the animals they show. I also reached out on a couple of Facebook groups asking for people to share their fair photos.”

Many of those images were photocopied in order to allow her design students to lay the photos out on sheets of 4” x 8” paper, in proportion to the 4’ x 8’ plywood boards they would work on for the mural. Once Bundshuh found several interesting combinations, she started collaging them together to achieve a flowing design with buildings in the background in gray values and people and animals in the foreground with bright colors. “I’m proud of the fact that every image on the mural is actually from our fairgrounds except for two stock photos that were altered to meet our needs. The derby driver on his car, the tractor pull, the kids with animals, the kids on rides, the mounted deputies... all Lenawee,” she said.

Most of the students pitched in, and painting started by late April. Some felt more confident with animals or people, and others opted to work on backgrounds, but the teacher allowed any of her students from any class to work on the mural. By the time the school year ended there was still work to do, so BD students Natalie McNicol, Katherine Yang, Savannah Harris, Autumn Snyder, Aphrodite Wregglesworth, Bret McNicol, Madelena Arriaga, and Bundshuh’s daughter, Lila, showed up on their last half day and stayed for many hours after school to continue working on it. After that the mural was moved to the basement studios at the ACA.

Bundshuh said there were 24 students in the design class that all worked on the overall design, the projecting of images on to the boards to trace, the in-depth drawing on the boards and the initial painting, another dozen or so that helped from her other classes, and three middle school students who helped. Once at the ACA, artist

Adrian Center for the Arts members Kelly Moore (front), Dianna Callaghan, and Dorie Zorn helped complete the mural Britton Deerfield students created, after it was moved to the basement of the ACA studios.

Kelly Moore worked on the Sheriff’s Office horses, and Jill Shaffer, Julia Tomaro, Dianna Callaghan and a few others showed up to pitch in for a shorter time. Artist Dorie Zorn showed up regularly to help Bundshuh finish the project, with many hours on touch-ups, details, and working on the overall balance.

The Lenawee County Fair Board paid for all of the materials, and Bundshuh said she felt fortunate to have a reputation for loving to work large scale and having done other large-scale murals within the school and one for Flatlanders Sculpture Supply in Blissfield.

She said it felt wonderful to have completed the project after having spent months on it. “I think it will look fantastic on the fairgrounds. Now I am excited to get back to my own studio and work on my personal work,” she said.

“This was a really grand scale mural to develop and work on,” Bundshuh said. “Some kids were afraid to paint and I kept telling them, ‘It’s just paint, if you do it wrong we’ll fix it.’ I loved it when a student would try something new and then get excited because it worked out well. They were amazing and I can’t wait until they go to the fair and see the mural, they can say ‘I helped with that.’”

Tecumseh resident responds to Rep. Kahle's letter on no-fault car insurance system

This is in response to Rep. Bronna Kahle's July 4th letter to the editor: Bronna Kahle truly listened to her constituents and her hard work, on our behalf, helped pass reforms to lower auto insurance costs in Michigan. I had moved to Michigan in 2001 and was paying approximately $36 per month for coverage on two vehicles. In June this year, I paid $1,357 for 6 months of coverage on two vehicles, with the highest deductibles allowed. I have an excellent driving record, so that has no bearing on the cost. I know, from personal experience, of the many abuses of the MCCA fund and the fraud that has caused such high costs to Michigan drivers. My heartfelt thanks goes to Bronna Kahle for her hard work and for caring about the citizens of Michigan. I anxiously look forward to July, 2020 and a substantial reduction in the cost of my auto insurance!

Schedule announced for 2019 Center for Excellence Field Day

Another year for the record books for sure. The wettest 12 months in Michigan history of agriculture and, wow, was this spring indescribable? With all that happening, the weather appears to become more summer like, farmers have some relief with crop insurance and the livestock farmers have been given an opportunity to plant feed for their animals with no conflict to the preventive planting insurance guidelines. In addition, the show will go on, as the 23rd year of the Center for Excellence struggles with planned test plots.

The Center for Excellence Field Day is set for Wednesday, Aug. 14. Registration will begin at 8 a.m. at Bakerlads Farm on Cadmus Road, 1/2 mile east of the main dairy at the corner of Morey Highway and Cadmus Road. The morning program begins at 8:45.

Two concurrent sessions will be taking place at individual stops under tent cover and two different trailer rides.

Concurrent sessions include All Things Soil: Getting greatest benefit from cover crops, soil health mapping, and transition from tillage to no-tillage. Also offered will be Pioneer Nitrogen Management.

Trailer tours run twice: one-hour long sessions at 8:45 a.m. and 10:15 a.m. The forestry tour featured item is timber marking, cutting, skidding and decking, and the agricultural tour will focus on conservation projects, cover crops and program opportunities.

The afternoon portion of the field day starts with lunch at the Raymond and Stutzman Farms, on Seneca Highway, south of Canandaigua Road, at 12 p.m. with a guest speaker from 12:45 to 1:30 p.m. The afternoon program will begin at 1:45 p.m.

with concurrent sessions running all afternoon until 3:30 p.m.

This year's program sessions will be:

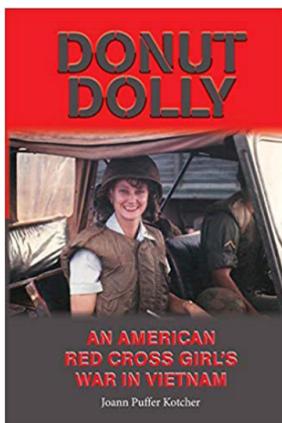

- Importance of planter set-up and singulation performance and how it makes you money
- Soybean research plots in Michigan from planting dates to populations
- Malt barley for beer and profit
- Precision wheat planting (two sessions, at 1:40 and 2:40 p.m.)

The sessions will be 30 minutes except the precision wheat planting, which will be 60 minutes long and will run twice through the afternoon.

Mark your calendars, save the date, and please be sure to call Lenawee Conservation District to RSVP for the lunch headcount at 263.7400, extension 3. See you all there!

'Donut Dolly' author to speak at TDL

Joann Puffer Kotcher, author of "Donut Dolly: An American Red Cross Girl's War in Vietnam," will discuss her time in Vietnam as a "Donut Dolly" on Wednesday, July 17 at 7 p.m. at the Tecumseh District Library meeting room. This program is open to the public and is co-sponsored by the Tecumseh Area Historical Society and the Tecumseh District Library.

Donut Dollies were identified from World War II when young women passed out donuts to resting troops during combat. The American Red Cross continued that label and Kotcher took on that role and more during the Vietnam War when she left her job as a math teacher at the explosive beginnings of the war. She was one of the first women allowed in a combat zone, ducking bullets and mortar shells to show moments of home to the frightened and weary GIs.

Kotcher's book re-creates the smells, sounds, emotions and fears during the Vietnam War. The longest undeclared war from 1955 to 1975, this war has affected many families all across America, and it is one that many in the community can relate to by being a veteran themselves, knowing someone in the war, or knowing someone who didn't return. Kotcher saw what most girls would never encounter and she will bring her story to Tecumseh to share with all.

The author will have books available for sale and signing at the event. All veterans are encouraged to come and enjoy. A portion of book sales are donated by Kotcher to veterans' organizations throughout Michigan.

Croswell offers college audition workshops for high school students

The Croswell Opera House is offering a workshop on college theater program auditions for high school juniors and seniors who are interested in studying performance in college.

The class will take place from 9 a.m. to noon the week of July 22-26. It will be led by Julia Hoffert, recruiting coordinator for the University of Michigan School of Music, Theatre and Dance; Michael Yuen, chair of the musical theater program at Siena Heights University; and Kristi Davis, a choreographer, teacher and former Radio City Rockette.

The deadline to register is July 14, but participation will be capped to ensure personal instruction time for all students, so early signup is recommended.

The class will focus on preparation for both college and professional auditions. It will be most useful for students applying to theater, musical theater, and vocal performance programs.

For more information, go to croswell.org/auditionworkshop or contact Jere Righter at 263.6868 or jrighter@croswell.org.

Red Cross issues urgent call for blood and platelet donors

LANSING — Following a difficult Fourth of July week for blood and platelet donations and ongoing challenges finding new blood donors, the American Red Cross now faces a blood shortage and has issued an emergency call for eligible individuals of all blood types to give now and prevent delays in medical care.

About 450 fewer blood drives were organized by businesses and other community groups last week than during a typical week as people across the country celebrated the holiday with activities and travel. This led to about 17,000 fewer blood donations than needed for patients in a single week, causing the Red Cross to now have less than a three-day supply of most blood types available — and less than a two-day supply of type O blood — for patients. At least a five-day supply is desired.

“Medical emergencies and critical treatments don’t stop for holiday celebrations. Patients depend on lifesaving blood transfusions every day,” said Cliff Numark, senior vice president, Red Cross Blood Services. “Right now, the Red Cross only has less than a three-day supply when we need a five-day supply to be prepared for all situations that require blood products. To help meet this need, we’ve added about 8,000 additional appointments at blood donation centers and community blood drives over the next few weeks to accommodate more donors. But we need people to fill those appointments, please join us today.”

In June, the Red Cross launched the Missing Types campaign to encourage donors — especially new donors and those who have not donated in the past years — to give blood or platelets during the challenging summer months. Through the campaign, the letters A, B and O — letters that make up the main blood groups — disappeared from popular brands to symbolize what happens when blood goes missing from hospital shelves during blood shortages.

Despite an encouraging response to the campaign, blood donations still fell short of expectations in June, resulting in more than 24,000 fewer donations than needed, and causing a significant draw down of the Red Cross blood supply.

“Blood is only available when generous blood and platelet donors roll up a sleeve to give, and right now, all donors — especially those who have never given or haven’t given in a while — are urged to make an appointment to give today,” Numark added.

Donors of all blood types, especially type O, are urged to make an appointment to donate using the Blood Donor App, at redcrossblood.org or by calling 1.800.RED CROSS (1.800.733.2767). Donation appointments and completion of a RapidPass online health history questionnaire are encouraged to help reduce the time it takes to donate.

Those interested in hosting a blood drive can learn more and sign up to sponsor a drive this summer by visiting redcrossblood.org/hostadrive.

Upcoming blood donation opportunities in Adrian will take place Friday, July 12 from 10:30 a.m.-4:15 p.m. at Citizens Gas, 117 N. Winter St.; Thursday, July 25 from 10 a.m.-3:45 p.m. at Madison High School, 3498 Treat Hwy.; and Friday, July 26 from 9 a.m.-4:45 p.m. at ProMedica Bixby Hospital Merillat Center, 818 Riverside Ave.

second story windows. All four apartments were occupied at the time of the fire, and all four families were evacuated with the assistance of neighbors and emergency personnel. Tecumseh emergency personnel were assisted at the scene of the fire by the Clinton, Raisin Township, Ridgeway, Adrian Township, and the Sand Lake fire departments. The Lenawee County Air truck and the Michigan State Police also assisted at the scene.

Upon investigation it was determined that the fire was intentionally set by a disgruntled acquaintance of one of the building’s occupants. According to news reports, 28-year-old Emilio R. Rodriguez, whose residence is next door to the burned building, was lodged at the Lenawee County Jail and has been charged with first-degree arson and possession of an explosive or incendiary device. His bond was set at $100,000 and he remains in jail.

Rodriguez has a probable cause hearing July 15 and a preliminary examination July 22 at 9 a.m. with 2A District Judge Jonathan L. Poer.

DISPATCH FROM 2A

Andrews sends final dispatch

the personal relationship to develop between LCCD dispatchers and TPD officers.

“It’s different. You get familiar with your area and your streets,” Andrews said. “You get to know everyone’s voices. You can tell in the officer’s voice if you need to send back up. We took care of our officers. We went above and beyond most of the time because we could.”

The change has definite advantages for officers, which Andrews was quick to point out. A big help is not having to reach out to other jurisdictions if things move beyond Tecumseh.

“Now everybody is on one channel and they can hear what’s going on,” said Andrews. “There are definitely pros. After a while I think they will get a system. It takes a while to adapt.”

Tecumseh residents can still come in and talk to Andrews in person or call in with questions. Her ability to listen and guide hasn’t changed, conversations just must happen during specific hours during the week.

“It’s just reassuring to people. Sometimes they don’t need a police officer. Sometimes it is an easy fix,” she said. “I still have a lot of people coming in to the desk. They still can come here and talk to a real person and try to get resolution.”

A brand-new phone system has made it even easier for Andrews to help people who call the TPD phone number. Where once she had to provide a different phone number for things outside police jurisdiction, now Andrews can transfer callers to the appropriate departments.

Having a menu to choose from is often a surprise for callers and has presented some challenges. “We are working through some of the kinks,” Andrews said. “Everybody calls here for everything. You still get the same kind of calls. Some serious, some not so critical.”

The main message instructs callers to dial 911 to contact police. In cases where people are calling from outside the county to check on family, they cannot dial 911 and get the LCCD. Andrews said the plan is to provide a phone number in addition to 911 that people can call during hours when the front desk is closed.

There are still people unaware TPD no longer handles its own dispatch. “Somebody called here the other day and they had no clue this had changed,” said Andrews.

Her message to residents is that she is still available to help however she can. Stop by the police station between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m., and when calling 423.7494, select option two or three to hear Andrew’s friendly voice.

Raisin, Tecumseh Near Fire Protection Pact

By BILL WHITING

The Tecumseh-Raisin Township fire protection dispute is quickly becoming a thing of the past.

In a township board meeting held Monday evening, officials of both communities came to a temporary agreement and scheduled a meeting for next Monday to work out a formal contract. Until that time, Tecumseh will respond to fire calls made in conjunction with a mutual aid agreement, whereby each department will respond to a request made by the other.

The opportunity to discuss the situation came as a complete surprise to township representatives as Mayor Harold Easton and the Tecumseh City Council walked in unexpectedly and proposed a settlement.

The board had just passed a motion to meet with the Council only minutes before, and Council couldn't have timed its appearance better if they had been following a script.

Easton explained that their delegation represented a gesture of "good will" on the part of the council. "We're not after your money for fire protection, but we're offering protection for at least parts of your township," he stated.

Robert Moore, township resident who lost a garage in a fire last week, raised the question of re-negotiating a contract with Tecumseh early in the meeting.

The proposal was discussed at length as board members explained the situation.

Jim Mitchell, township supervisor, pointed out that Tecumseh's was the only department in the county with which Raisin did not have a mutual aid agreement.

When questioned later on this point, Easton replied that the city had dropped the mutual aid idea some time ago because, "the city was called out to often and when it was not necessary for Tecumseh to be there."

Mitchell also cited abuse by local residents who called the city when the township department should have been notified. He explained that this was one reason for the cancellation of the previous contract in 1967 and suggested that the individual home-owners pay half the cost of fire runs from the city in order to deter future recurrences.

In pursuing his proposal to renegotiate with the city, Moore suggested the possibility of having someone on duty at the township fire barn 24 hours a day.

It was reported that only three other departments in the county had such an operation — Adrian, Tecumseh and Morenci — at a minimum cost of $8,000 per year, according to William Mackey, County Supervisor and Raisin building inspector.

Monday night's session will include the Council and Raisin Township Board and representatives of the two fire departments. Meeting is scheduled at city hall at 8 p.m.

Food Poisoning Can Spoil Summer Fun

The fun of summer picnicking can easily turn into a tragedy caused by food poisoning, according to B. Dale Ball, director of Michigan's Department of Agriculture.

Producers, processors, wholesalers and retailers are all inspected by the Agriculture Department to insure safe and sanitary handling of meat, produce and dairy products, but once the product has left the store, the consumer is responsible for the safety of his own food.

The rule to remember to avoid food poisoning is, "Keep it hot, keep it cold or don't keep it."

Food most often leading to poisoning includes hams, poultry, salads (potato salad is notorious), many cream products such as cream pies and food made with a mixture of milk and eggs.

Common symptoms of food poisoning are nausea, vomiting and diarrhea. Fatalities are rare in most common forms of food poisoning but some types, such as botulism, can cause death.

Effects of food poisoning are not always immediately apparent. On some types, effects may appear in as little as one-half hour while in other types, they may not be detected for more than 30 days. Most common summer villains show their effects in two to six hours.

HAPPINESS IS A SPARKLER — The weather didn't exactly cooperate, but the 4th of July was just as exciting as ever, as lightning competed with fireworks to produce the most spectacular effects. The kids still enjoyed it, though, as many neighborhoods throughout the city were aglow with the dancing firebrands.

2,000 See Fireworks

Although it was delayed one day by Friday's storms, Tecumseh's fireworks display was a booming success.

The local Chamber of Commerce sponsored the $550 show which drew a crowd of over 2,000 spectators Saturday night.

This year a new electronic device, developed by Dave Simpson, was used to set off the charges from a safe distance.

Jim Fielder was in charge of the colorful spectacle. He was assisted by Harlan Ruhl, Dave Bailey, Jack Simpson, Mike Withrow, Terry Sisty, Ron Thomas and Forrest Abner.

BASEBALL FROM 1A

THS 2019 graduate chooses EMU over MLB opportunity

Throwing the ball hard was something Wagoner has always done, even as a youngster. He began playing when he was four or five, he said. "My first word was something like, 'ball,'" he laughed. His parents, Dee and Skeeter, started him off the regular baseball route — tee-ball, pee-wees and little league — then came travel league. The Wagoners committed to a league in Brighton where he was exposed to an elite group of players. As a freshman, Wagoner played on the Tecumseh JV team. His fastball was clocked at 77 mph. As he grew into his lanky 6' 4" frame, "Beanpole," his nickname, continued to work on his pitching. Steadily, his speed picked up and his control became more consistent. "All four years he got more and more consistent," said Tecumseh High School Coach Tom Bullinger. "He worked on his command. He set goals for himself." Bullinger said Wagoner holds the high school record for career strikeouts, averaging almost two per inning. Wagoner is also the first player he's coached to be drafted by a professional team. "I'm very proud of him as to how hard he's worked," he said. "He has a curveball that's unhittable. It breaks late. You either swing and miss or your knees buckle. His curveball is filthy." It was his pitching speed and "filthy" curveball that caught the eyes of the MLB scouts. At one game against Ypsilanti Lincoln, there were 21 scouts in attendance. How did Wagoner deal with all that pressure? "I didn't think about it. I just played like I normally do." He also happened to clock his fastest pitch at that time — a 94 mph fastball. On the day Wagoner found out he was drafted, the Indians were headed to the regional semi-finals and he was on the mound. Bullinger was impressed by his composure after hearing such monumental news. "He pitched so well," he said. "We just couldn't hit." The Indians lost, 2-1, against Fowlerville. The news of his draft pick was a point of pride for the entire team. "They were incredibly happy for me," Wagoner said. "I grew up with all of them. I'm going to miss them. I might not ever be able to play with them again," he reflected.

"He's a polite, nice kid," Bullinger said. "We're going to miss him. I'm sure other teams will be glad not to see him." While his high school career may be over, he's still working hard on his pitching. It's paid off. He's been able to travel to the Colorado Rockies Showcase and Super 60 tournaments. Brandon Inge, the former Detroit Tiger utility player, has taken him under his wing and helped him develop a new pitch — the changeup. "It goes into a righty batter," he said, explaining how the pitch curves. "I just need it to be nasty." Wagoner is looking forward to playing college ball. While he may be missing out on some upfront cash, he feels he'll be able to work on his pitches, put on more weight, gain more experience, and get a diploma. He can re-enter the draft when he's 21, which would be the end of his junior year. "Even if I lose a little money upfront, in the end I could possibly make more and I'll have my degree," he said. "I don't want to get stuck playing in the lower level. I'm happy with my choice."
